“ If you didn't know Durun personally I would say you missed out on knowing the best person you could ever know. Many times we don't know who a person is around us until they're gone. Durun was a unifier. People who knew Durun knew he was one puzzle piece that could connect them to anything or anyone that could make their dreams come true. Durun was a real unifier of people, a giving person and a humble man. Durun knew a lot of people and had a lot of friends he considered family. Durun was the type of person that didn't take his friends for granted. He loved his friend; they were his extended family. He always told me, one thing I connect with is people who are genuine and people that I know would do for me what I would do for them. But he also said, one thing I learned is that you still can't know a person truly until they have been tested and when you can see how a person will stand up under pressure that will tell you a lot. He said this goes for anyone. He said one thing I can say about myself is I've been tested and I stood up as a man an excepted what ever the out come of my actions would be, so that is why I can't deal with a lot of people who don't have that in them. Durun was a funny person, he loved to joke around and make people laugh. Anyone who knew him have their own memories of his humor. Durun would appreciate you telling people the funny things he used to say or just to cheer yourself up when thinking about him. Durun was the kind of person who Dreamed Big. He was always a business minded person. He was a true Entrepreneur and wanted to build businesses throughout our black communities and he encouraged his friends and family to think Big! In closing, I believe Durun's ultimate goal was Unity and building up our communities so that our kids would have a better life than we may have had with more opportunities and economic power in our communities. I believe he saw the system and understood how it has black people divided and had us fighting over crumbs and had us as consumers but not owners. Durun believed in ownership. I believe Durun wanted more likeminded entrepreneurs to start businesses in our community and was going to do his part to bring those people together.

Long Live Durun C Mays and great King amongst us to Inspire Us!
